FEDERATION

Catholic Societies of Kentucky Hold Their Second Annual Convention.

Addressed by Rev. Father Richard Barrett and Secretary Matre.

Reports Received Show Movement Is Gaining Strength in the State.

DR. F. S. CLARK ELECTED PRESIDENT

The Kentucky State Federation of Catholic Societies met in annual convention last Sunday afternoon in the parlors of the Louisville Hotel. From the start it was a business session and was harmonious throughout. State President Witte presided and in his report stated the obstacles that had confronted his administration in various sections of the State. The convention was a representative one, delegates being present from various parts of the State not heretofore represented. Credentials were received and the following delegates seated:

Anthony J. Sheridan, Louisville; Gerald J. Connolly, Newport; John Fackler, Louisville; Leo Hayden, Springfield; Joseph Landorf, Louisville; Steve Clark, Paducah; Dr. Francis S. Clark, Louisville; H. Dickman, Bellview; James W. Noonan, Louisville; Judge H. W. Rives, Lebanon; J. F. Brownfield, Louisville; Judge Michael T. Shine, Covington; Michael Reichert, Louisville; Eugene J. Cooney, Louisville; H. B. Huedefeld, Covington; Miss Rena Weisenberg, Louisville; Miss Mary E. Sheridan, Louisville; Thomas J. Connolly, Newport; James Coleman, Louisville; William M. Higgins, Louisville; Dr. D. M. Casey, Carrollton; Clarence H. Zook, Louisville; William O'Connor, Louisville; C. D. Witte, Dayton; Dr. J. W. Fowler, Louisville; Con J. Ford, Louisville; Thomas Tobin, Louisville; R. J. Deller, Louisville.

They represented nearly all the national organizations composed of Catholics. After the reading of the minutes by Secretary Thomas Connolly the Rev. Richard Barrett, C. P., was introduced and delivered an eloquent address, of which a synopsis is given in this issue.

National Secretary Anthony Matre, of Cincinnati, followed in an able address, in which he explained the aims and purposes of the federation movement, what it has done, what it now is, and what it expects to do in the future. Where there is union, he said, there are results. He referred briefly to the situation in Germany and the work of the Center party and to the disunion existing in France. He then passed over the work of the American Federation in the Philippines, what had been accomplished for the Catholic Indians and the position taken on the school and divorce laws. Besides having the approval of the Holy Father the Federation was sustained by almost the entire American hierarchy. Politicians are expressly eliminated, and the one who would use the body for political gain would be the worst defeated candidate who ever ran. The Federation comprises the Crusaders of the twentieth century, going forth solely for the honor and glory of God. Secretary Matre's remarks were generously applauded.

President Witte announced the following committees, after which a short recess was taken:

Constitution—Gerald Connolly, Judge Michael Shine, Miss Rena Weisenberg, Steve Clark and William M. Higgins.

Resolutions—Dr. J. W. Fowler, Leo Hayden, H. Dickman, James B. Kelly and Thomas Tobin.

Finance—William O'Connor, H. B. Huedefeld, Miss Mary Sheridan, Joseph Landorf and Michael Reichert.

Upon reassembling the Committee on Constitution was the first to report. But few changes were recommended, the most important being that hereafter parishes may be represented from counties where there is no federation. The call for a State convention must be issued sixty days in advance of the meeting of the national body. County Federations will be entitled to one delegate for every five hundred members, and where no provision is made by the State body the laws of the National Federation will govern.

Dr. Fowler reported resolutions reaffirming the work of the Atlantic City convention and congratulating the national body on its great accomplishments during the past year. Other resolutions urge County Federations to heartily support and encourage the society for the spread of faith among the Indians, and also humbly beg the support of the Bishop and clergy. The Kentucky Irish American and the Glaubensbrote were named the official organs for Kentucky.

Owing to the near approach of the national convention County Federations were authorized to select delegates to Detroit, one for every 1,000 represented.

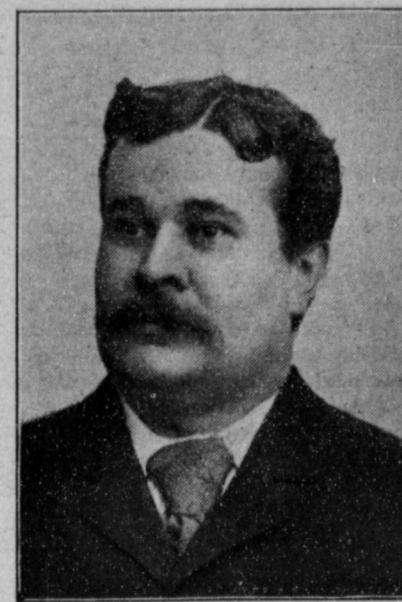

The last business was the election of officers, which resulted as follows:

President—Dr. Francis S. Clark, Louisville.

First Vice President—Dr. D. M. Casey, Carrollton.

Second Vice President—Judge H. W. Rives, Lebanon.

Marshal—H. B. Huedefeld, Covington.

VINCENTIANS

Did Honor to Their Church and Themselves Last Sunday.

Great Body of Men Visited St. Brigid's and Received Sacrament.

Cordial Greeting by Father Connolly and Ladies of the Parish.

FATHER DEPPEN'S ELOQUENT SERMON

Paul's society but lowliness, humility and self-denial? God looks for little things—He does not look for the great things. Have you ever thought of this, my brethren? Have you ever noticed that the special blessing of the Deity rests upon the humble and the lowly? Look into the church—see the humble Society of St. Francis—one that has developed a magnificent growth and has the blessing of God. Look at the Little Sisters of the Poor, that had no existence in the life of some of you present—some of you were already in manhood's estate when there was established that society, and see today what these poor little women have done. But, have they done it? No, it is Jesus Christ, who liveth and worketh in them that has done it. We have them in this city, as we have them in perhaps three hundred other places, some with institutions larger proportionately than we have here. Whence comes this? Is it not the mustard seed? You who have traveled, especially in the church, have you ever found that special graces have been coupled with great Cathedrals. Go into the different shrines set apart by God—the shrines of the Blessed Virgin—do you find these in noted places? Do you find the statues erected at these shrines are works of art? Look at the shrine at Loretto, a little black ebony statue, and yet the world could not purchase those statues. Our Blessed Lord did not go to the Louvre at Paris and singe out Murillo's Immaculate Conception not into the galleries at Florence, or in Rome, and singe out Michael Angelo's pictures of the Madonna, or of our Saviour—why? Because God loves the humble and the lowly, He loves the poor—He loves the widow's mite.

I will ask you to remember the day Our Lord fed the multitude with the loaves and fishes. After they had eaten what did He say? "Gather up the fragments lest they be lost." He had more interest in the fragments than He had in the multiplication of the loaves and fishes. So in the temple, when the people came in and deposited their offerings. He did not praise the wealthy. He praised the poor widow who came with her mite. "She has given more," He said. So it is in every other thing, the humble, the lowly, whom God raises up, and so it is in the church. It is the poor nun, the poor, humble priest, like St. Vincent de Paul, whom lifts up and makes their great instruments of lasting work. He made him the founder of the Sisters of Charity and of your society.

From all this I would have you derive a meditation that God blesses the lowly and the humble. He blesses our humble efforts. He blesses our unseen works, the works of the right hand that the left is not acquainted with. So it is with our works. Have you any worldly profit from being a member of the St. Vincent de Paul Society? No. And yet you have. You receive already seven-fold. It is not the society that brings to you worldly honor, but, on the contrary, it brings the benediction of God upon you, upon your wife, upon your children, upon your brothers and sisters. As sure as God is God so sure, my brothers, will God give you, if you are humble and lowly and mind not what the world does, if you give your little alms in secret, that alms will bring to you and your children, to your wife and to all of you will bring you to life everlasting.

Now, in conclusion, I wish but to say one word to you to call to your minds another word of our Lord. Speaking of the

GRAND COUNCIL

Lexington Preparing For Entertainment of Young Men's Institute.

Barry Council, Y. M. I., of Lexington, has almost completed arrangements for the entertainment of the Grand Council of the Kentucky Jurisdiction, which will hold a three days' session in the Bluegrass capital, beginning August 21. Barry Council has made great strides during the past year, bringing its membership up to 250. A big initiation in the morning, a ball game in the afternoon and reception and car ride will be features of the first day, to be followed during the convention by a banquet and other entertainments. This council is now one of the largest in the jurisdiction, therefore the members have placed John Shannon, a young lawyer of experience and ability, in nomination for Grand Secretary. He has been a hard worker among the young men of Lexington and is well known to the delegates. Last year he declined the nomination in order that the incumbent might receive an endorsement, but now his friends say he must run for the position, arguing that the office should be more evenly distributed throughout the jurisdiction.

I can not say to you how delighted I am to see this solid phalanx, this solid body of Vincentians, before me this morning. This church, which, after all, is not as small as it may appear, but will hold many, is filled, I may say to its utmost capacity, and filled by whom-filled by the friends of our Lord Jesus Christ. I know that you have to get home to your duties, and, with God's help, I shall not detain you but a few minutes, although they say I preach very long, yet, with the increase of years, I hope that I am becoming better in that respect.

I can not say to you how delighted I am to see this solid phalanx, this solid body of Vincentians, before me this morning. This church, which, after all, is not as small as it may appear, but will hold many, is filled, I may say to its utmost capacity, and filled by whom-filled by the friends of our Lord Jesus Christ. Say what you will, my dear brethren, I have said it before, there is no association in the church that can compare in any way to that of St. Vincent de Paul. There is no society that has the benediction and the blessing of God upon it as has the Society of St. Vincent de Paul. It is a society that brings a reward seven-fold in this world, and I promise you, and God has promised you, that the reward will be a hundred-fold hereafter. What is the society but an humble organization? What is the church but humility? What are the great works of the church but humble works? What are the characteristics of St. Vincent de

CONDITIONS

That Must Be Observed For Success of the Catholic Federation.

Very Rev. Richard Barrett's Address at State Convention.

Much Depends Upon Degree of Knowledge Its Friends Possess.

LOOKING TOWARD DISTANT FUTURE

JAMES A. ROSS.
Whole Community Shocked When His Death Was Announced.

Readers of the Kentucky Irish American will read with no little interest the eloquent utterances of Very Rev. Richard Barrett, C. P., delivered before the delegation to the Federation convention Sunday afternoon. At its conclusion the reverend gentleman was given enthusiastic applause and thanked by the delegates for his words of wisdom. From Father Barrett's remarks we take the following:

Ladies and Gentlemen: It is simply impossible for me to give expression to my appreciation of the honor conferred upon me in the invitation to address a representative body of the American Federation of Catholic Societies, for it is an honor which some of the highest ecclesiastical dignitaries of the country have been proud to accept. Wherefore I thank you, committee, and particularly your zealous co-laborer, Dr. Clarke, through whose interest in your work and kindness to me such an honor has been conferred upon me. In considering what shape my very brief address should take I deemed it altogether superfluous even to attempt to explain the objects and purposes of Catholic federation or to expatiate on the tangible results already achieved by the efforts of this united Catholic body. Indeed this would be for me all the more superfluous, as the esteemed National Secretary is present with us, who will, I am sure, lay before you the aims of and the striking results already secured by the united efforts of Catholic federation, and this he will do with a force and persuasiveness that I consider myself incapable of. Let me then, rather peer into the near as well as the distant future, and conjuring up the unlimited possibilities which lie stretched before the mental vision of Catholic federation, dwell upon the means of rendering those possibilities actualities by presenting for your consideration what I shall call the keynote or secret of federation's success.

In the first place all success in the moral, intellectual and even physical order, as far as men or societies of men are in question, depends in great measure upon the knowledge they possess of the end or object sought to be attained. You can not discover the successful man in any line of business of the present day and age who has not a thorough knowledge of his business and of all things that pertain thereto. In fact, failure in any undertaking is in most cases due to or can be readily traced to ignorance of some details of that undertaking. The same principle holds in every walk in life, and therefore it applies to religion. Why is it that in the past much more so than in the present lecturers and even ministers of the Gospel thought they were working for God when they vilified the church? Why is it that the open and public attacks on the true religion of Christ are not so frequently heard or read as in the past? The only reason that can be assigned is that men and women are not so ignorant of the church and her teachings as they were in time gone by. Still, again, why is it that some hold aloof from federation? Is it not because they have failed to grasp the real purpose of federation—because they are in some measure ignorant of its aims? In fine, ignorance is the fee of all true progress, ignorance is the enemy of all real advance, and ignorance on the part of our own people as well as those outside the fold is the only real for that our religion has to fear. Ignorance therefore is the only real foe to Catholic federation. Hence if the federation of Catholic societies is to be the success predicted for it, then it follows that the entire body as such, and each individual who has at heart the interests of that body, must be equipped, and thoroughly equipped, with every detail of knowledge that renders a member fully conversant with all that federation stands pledged to.

But there is required besides this what I would call a certain boldness in using the lawful means to attain the end of Catholic federation. The world admires the man who has the courage to come to the front and declare his purposes and assign the reasons for his cause. Yea, the world admires boldness in the man who advocates even a cause that is unjust, and even the criminal by the boldness and fearlessness of his methods will sometimes win applause. Oh, then, if this be true, should we not be bold and fearless in championing a cause and religion that rests upon the eternal principles of justice? Shall we fear to go before the world, we who advocate a cause that is the greatest and grandest a man can enter into and uphold? Wherefore the second requisite in the keynote of federation's success is a manly courage and fearlessness in using every available

PROVED FATAL.

The Rev. Father P. A. O'Reilly, rector of St. Paul's church, Birmingham, Ala., was thrown from a horse last week while attending the encampment of the Alabama National Guard at Birmingham. He was picked up and every attention given him. For a few days it was thought his injuries were not serious, but his condition grew worse and he died at an early hour Thursday morning. Father O'Reilly was one of the most popular priests in the Mobile diocese, and in Birmingham he was a great favorite with all classes of people.

WELCOME VISITOR.

Dr. W. J. McCrann, formerly of this city, but now of Omaha, who has been spending the week with Louisville friends and relatives, was a welcome visitor to the Kentucky Irish American office Tuesday. Before leaving for the West Dr. McCrann was an active and prominent figure in local Irish and Catholic affairs, and as he always represents Nebraska at the Hibernian national conventions it is evident that his interest in his fellow-countrymen continues. His Louisville friends were all glad to again meet him and learn that, besides being regarded one of the leading physicians of Nebraska, he has amassed a nice fortune.

Dr. McCrann was a guest at the reception given George Butler on Thursday night. His address to his friends was happy and patriotic and revived pleasant memories of the past.

ARMAGH

Cathedral Consecrated With Imposing Ceremonies Last Sunday.

Most Important Happening Ireland Has Witnessed For Years.

Lasting Monument to Irish Cardinal, Bishops, Priests and People.

TOOK SIXTY YEARS FOR ERECTION

The solemn consecration and reopening of St. Patrick's new and magnificent Cathedral, the Prematial See of Ireland, the most important happening of the Catholic church in the Isle of Saints and Scholars in many years, occurred last Sunday with most imposing ceremonies. Cardinal Logue, who on that day celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of his consecration as Bishop of Raphoe, officiated at the ceremony proper, while Archbishop Walsh, of Dublin, pontificated at the high mass, and Archbishop Healy, of Tuam, preached the consecration sermon. Among the distinguished prelates assisting in the sanctuary were Cardinal Vannutelli, who came especially from Rome to represent Pius X.; Archbishop Bourne, of Westminster, and Bishops of Liverpool, Birmingham, Portsmouth and Aberdeen, together with hundreds of clergymen from every part of the world, the United States, Canada and Australia furnishing a very large number. The Duke and Duchess of Norfolk and several members of the British nobility also attended the ceremony, which surpassed in splendor anything of the kind seen before in Ireland.

Sixty years have passed since the foundations of the Cathedral were laid in 1840 by Dr. Croly, then Archbishop. Under his successor, Dr. Dixon, the work was continued, and a great bazaar given in 1865 cleared more than $35,000 and enabled the church authorities to place a roof on the building, under the supervision of a young Dublin architect named McCarthy, Mr. Duff, the original architect, having died. Archbishop McGettigan continued the work, until in August, 1873, he was able solemnly to dedicate the new temple. More than one hundred thousand persons attended this ceremony, and twenty prelates, headed by the late Cardinal Cullen, were present in the sanctuary, where the preacher for the occasion was the celebrated Dominican orator, Rev. Thomas Burke, famous for his lectures and sermons all over the world.

After the death of Dr. McGettigan, in 1887, Monsignor Logue, who had been Coadjutor a few months previously, succeeded him and set to work to pay off the heavy debt left by his predecessor and finish the building, whose interior decorations were of such flimsy character that he ordered them entirely renewed, importing the best ecclesiastical art works from Italy and France. In 1893 he was made a Cardinal by the late Pope, and this additional dignity enabled him to raise successfully the large sum needed for the work.

It was not, however, till the close of the year 1899 that His Eminence, judging the time ripe for further efforts, issued a pastoral letter on the "National Cathedral" addressed to all the churches in Ireland and was enabled to start the famous and popular National Cathedral bazaar, which lasted two years, and which raised immense sums toward the work of finishing the building.

In 1901 the Cathedral was closed to worshippers and the decoration of its interior was pushed rapidly along until the present time, when it was decided to proceed to the solemn consecration of the building on the very day on which occurred the silver jubilee of the Cardinal Primate's episcopal consecration.

It was principally through the untiring efforts of Rev. John Quinn, now Canon of Magherafelt, and of his successor, Rev. Michael Quinn, the present administrator, that much of the money was raised. For four years the work of completing and decorating the interior had been in progress under the supervision and in accordance with the plans of the most eminent architects of Ireland. The most skilled artists have been employed in the work with such success that the perfection of the altars, mosaics, screen pulpit and organ has evoked the admiration of even the most critical visitors. The total cost of the building is placed at two million and a half dollars, which have been collected all over the world.

MACKIN COUNCIL.

President Shelley presided over the meeting of Mackin Council Tuesday night, when several applications were received and referred. There was only routine business, the most important action relating to the approaching election for Grand officers. Mackin instructed its three delegates, Frank Adams, Fred Herp and Frank Murphy, to try and have George Lautz, now holding the office of Grand Secretary, elected for another term. Charles Raidy reported everybody anxious for Tuesday to arrive, when they would all join in the basket picnic at Sugar Grove.

MATT O'DOHERTY FOR JUDGE.

There is a vacancy in the Common Pleas division of the Circuit Court on account of the death of Judge Upton W. Muir. It is with Gov. Beckham to make the appointment. Judge Matt O'Doherty, who has heretofore graced the bench in this court, is urged for the vacancy. Judge O'Doherty declined to accept the position when it was offered to him before because of duties which he considered he owed to his many clients. It is understood that he would accept the Judgeship now, and his friends are urging his appointment.

Judge O'Doherty is a lawyer of distinguished ability and would grace any position on the bench, either as Chancellor or Judge. If he is appointed to fill the vacancy it is understood Judge O'Doherty will be willing to stand for election before the people in November or at any other time.

The Kentucky Irish American urges the appointment of Judge O'Doherty not on account of his nationality or his religion, but on his fitness.

HONORS FOR GEORGE BUTLER.

The Ancient Order of Hibernians probably do more charity work than any other Catholic benevolent organization in this country. The election of Mr. George J. Butler as one of the Board of Directors of the national body is a high honor and will do the order a great deal of good in Louisville and Kentucky.

The reception given in honor of Mr. Butler's election by the local members of the order and by the Ladies' Auxiliary on Thursday night demonstrated in a striking way how highly the A. O. H. in Louisville and vicinity appreciated the action of the national convention. Mr. Butler is a high class man and stands high in the community as a business man and a citizen.

ENFORCEMENT OF THE LAWS.

Whenever there is a tragedy like that in which R. Lee Suter, of the Board of Public Safety, lost his life while with a crowd of courageous men and women at a fishing camp, there is a storm of indignation for a few days and then it is all forgotten.

The preachers deliver sermons from their pulpits and loudly call for reform and the newspapers in opposition to the administration get very indignant for a few days, but within a week or ten days the lesson of the tragedy is lost sight of. There is just as much carrying of concealed deadly weapons now as there was before July 3, when Suter was killed, and there are probably as many men of alleged responsibility associating with disreputable women as there ever was.

Reforms are not accomplished in a day. It is not the fault of the city administration that men carry concealed deadly weapons or associate with disreputable women. Of course it is the duty of the police department to see that the law prohibiting the carrying of concealed deadly weapons is enforced, but the evil is more deep-seated.

Public sentiment should be aroused against the practice. It should be made odious in the sight of all men for citizens to carry concealed deadly weapons or to openly associate with disreputable women as there ever was.

We heartily agree with Father Phelan, who has this to say in the Western Watchman: "It is his address before the conference of Catholic colleges and seminaries Archbishop Glennon said Catholic education suffered two great drawbacks. One was lack of means and the other want of advertising. We are not doing all we would like to do for want of money, and what we do is not known to the mass of the people, and to those who might be induced to assist the cause, because we persist in hiding our light under a bushel. We are doing all we can to remedy the latter evil."

Hats off to Hager and Haley, heads of the Democratic Committee.

XAVERIAN BROTHERS

Are Visited by Their Superior General and Provincial General.

Brother James and the Xaverian Brothers have with them at St. Xavier's College on East Broadway a distinguished visitor in the person of Rev. Brother Chrysostom, Superior General of the Congregations of the Xaverian Brotherhoods throughout the world. The Superior General arrived here Tuesday with Rev. Brother Dominic, Provincial General in this country, with headquarters in Baltimore. Brother Chrysostom comes from Bruges, Belgium, and is on tour of inspection of the American colleges conducted by the Xaverian order, of which there are hundreds, extending from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and of which St. Xavier's in this city is one of the best. Brother Dominic will accompany the Superior General on his American tour, which will not be completed for several months. The visitors expressed themselves highly pleased with their college in Louisville and spoke highly of Brother James and his assistants and their management.

LAFAYETTE COUNCIL

Hustling For the Presidency of the Kentucky Jurisdiction.

A special to the Kentucky Irish American says Lafayette Council, Y. M. I., is doing some lively hustling just now. At the Grand Council to be held at Lexington they intend capturing the office of Grand President of the Kentucky Jurisdiction. Since the organization of the Kentucky Jurisdiction Newport has not had the honor.

The members of Lafayette claim they have a man capable in every way for the Presidency, one who has served the Grand Council three years, been President of their council two years, and is a charter member. He is Dr. Joseph A. Reardon, First Vice President of the Grand Council, who is known throughout the State as a representative Catholic, a professional man of ability, and one to whom the Y. M. I. will be proud to point as their leader.

MADE A PRIEST.

Rev. Andrew Brady Ordained by Bishop McCloskey at Cathedral.

The Rev. Andrew Brady, nephew of Rev. Father Brady, of St. Cecilia's, was ordained at the Cathedral last Monday morning. The impressive ceremony was conducted by the Right Rev. Bishop McCloskey, assisted by Vicar General Cronin and Rev. Dr. Schuhmann.

Father Brady is a graduate of Bishop McQuaid's seminary at Rochester, and is a young priest of great promise.

Following the ordination a reception was held in the rectory of the Cathedral, where many friends called to congratulate him. Father Brady has been given a charge out in the State.

RECENT DEATHS.

Cornelius McDonogh, sixty-three years old, died Thursday morning at his home, 1918 Todd street. He was a native of Ireland but many years ago came to Louisville, locating in the West End. The funeral will take place this morning from St. Patrick's church.

GETS GOOD PLACE.

Frank Martin, who just graduated from St. John's school under the supervision of Very Rev. Father Bax, has been given a place as record clerk with the Louisville & Nashville at Ninth and Broadway. He is a promising boy, and his father, Albert F. Martin, very justly feels proud of him.

TRINITY COUNCIL.

Trinity Council, Y. M. I., held an unimportant meeting Monday night, though there was an unusually large attendance of members. Applications were received and reports heard from those interested in the special trip to Lexington next month.

HINTS ON STYLE.

Accordion plaited gowns continue in demand for evening wear and are especially in demand for young girls.

The variety and the number of shepherd's plaid walking costumes, especially in black and white, are fairly bewildering.

One of the peculiarities of the summer coats is that most of them have their sleeves lined with taffeta, but the other parts of the coat are left unlined.

The subdued and dull plaid and checks, of which a few only have been seen here, are distinctly Parisian and have been much worn by fashionable French girls.

The new mohair show plaid as well as striped effects, and the plaiding is done in the waiving and not by the admixture of another color. Black, blue and brown are the hues most fashionable. Many of them have long skirted coats and vests of suede, plique or silk.

A new green in materials for autumn and winter frocks is much like hunter's green, only several shades lighter. The darker shades are to have the preference, and in these the browns, navys, grays and this new green will be favorites. As to the materials themselves, broadcloth, zibelines, prunellas, cashmeres, jacquards, voltes, crepes and collonnes are being ordered in quantities.

Advance notes from Paris indicate that monotonous are to be the coming things in gown materials, and that the accessories will be in different shades of the color adopted for the costumes. In millinery the deeper shade of the three or five colors selected for the hat corresponds to the color of the material chosen for the gown foundation. This is the rule for the very exclusive and in time affects the general gown-wearing public.

The best ever offered are to be had while our GREAT ALTERATION SALE continues. Why do we advertise such great reductions? Simply because it is greater economy for us to make this big sacrifice and dispose of a large stock of pianos before the work of laying our new floor begins, than to store the goods and thus handle them twice, take chances on having something damaged, and then have to make the sacrifice. Take our advice: Call at our store this week and make your selection—you will never regret it.

MOURN HIS DEATH.

James A. Ross Stricken While Performing Work of Mercy.

With feelings of sincere sorrow the Kentucky Irish American chronicles the death of one of its most earnest friends and advocates, James A. Ross, who was stricken while in the performance of one of the works of mercy—burying the dead.

On returning home on Wednesday of last week from the funeral of his friend, Michael Grogan, he complained of feeling ill, and continued to grow worse until Saturday morning, when his soul passed peacefully away. James A. Ross came to this country twenty-two years ago, when but a mere boy. He hailed from the County Longford, the home of Oliver Goldsmith, one of the dearest and brightest names in English literature. At the age of twelve years he went to work for the Messrs. Meagel, with whom he remained until ten years ago. Ambitious to be independent, he embarked in the grocery business at Eighth and St. Catherine streets, and at every step since success was his and dame fortune kind. But now a change has come. Life's bitter foe, Cold Death, entered his door, and what victory hast thou won, what laurels are thine, to take from home, wife and children, a dear, kind and affectionate father, who by his great heart and close observance of duty was a model? What sad thoughts arise in the minds of those he has left behind when they think he had to leave them and pitch his tent in the quiet burial ground of St. Louis cemetery, where he now peacefully sleeps.

What a volume of sweet thoughts and tender memories of noble deeds arise in the minds and hearts of the bereft friends. From his quiet home center of influence his power of mercy and kindness was as far-reaching as the beams of the candle upon the dark and troublesome world. None ever went to him with the world's trials but that consideration was given, and with such sincerity and tender love as to be token the presence of an earthly saint. His life was one that did honor to God and glorified his race.

"O! cruel death, how couldst thou so desire

On such short notice to take an upright sire?

Why steal upon him as the thief thou art,

To plant thy sickle in his generous heart?

Oh, cruel death, take up thy record,

Treachery is in all thy work."

Truly it may be said, in the words of the poet, that "every heart best knows its own loss," and James Ross' death has made a void that nothing can fill save the consciousness of the happy exchange he has made and the joy of reunion with his loved ones in the abode of the blessed. In our departed friend were blended the finer and nobler sensibilities of a manly man, who was both by natural endowment and personal attainment a figure in whatever sphere he moved. Honest with himself, therefore honest with others, these traits made his friends steadfast to him in sunshine and cloud.

James Ross left a wife and four children to mourn his loss, besides an aged mother, who is inconsolable, and three sisters and a brother. All pray that God may give them strength to bear their heavy loss, and that they may find solace in the words of Rev. Father Twobig, for it is a consolation to them to know that he received every blessing his church could bestow, and strengthened as he was by the graces of God, his soul has gone from the heaven begun on earth to the heaven won for eternity.

The funeral Monday morning was one of the largest ever seen at the Dominican church, from whence the remains were tenderly borne to their last resting place by Messrs. Thomas Muldoon, Harry Crotty, James McKiernan, Andrew Meagher, Thomas Campion and John Campbell. May his soul rest in peace.
